●Post-Reading Activity●

Have you ever had an embarrassing moment that haunted you but in fact nobody else cared about? How did it happen?

Moment 1: Wearing a uniform inside out.

Moment 2: Falling down while walking with friends.

Moment 3: Misspelling a word in class.

Moment 4: _____

As the video says, one can recall all of his or her own embarrassing moments but can't remember his or her friends'. When I was an eighth-grader, I spelled a word wrong in front of all my fellow schoolmates. As one of the top five students in my class, I was very embarrassed. I seemed to hear my classmates laughing at me. I was haunted by this incident until I graduated from junior high. Then one day I mentioned it to a classmate of mine, and he didn't remember it at all. All he remembered were his own embarrassing moments. Then I realized that most people only care about their own faults and have no time to think about those of others.
